

The FCC is a publically funded institution supposed to be a doing work in the public interest. When is the FCC going to get back to doing its job and stop doing things for the private sector. XM radio may be a threat to local radio, but public radio is not doing anyone any service by monopolizing the airwaves. XM radio should have the ability to provide local instant traffic and weather. The FCC has taken the wrong side concerning the duopoly question and should start working for the people rather than the conservative right lobbyists and their money grubbing agenda.
